

Renewable Energy Wildlife Institute

REWI is a groundbreaking independent nonprofit that works to solve renewable energy, wildlife, and related natural resource challenges through sound science and collaboration.

Partners and Friends have made an organizational commitment to supporting wildlife conservation and responsible renewable energy development. Partners are REWI's core champions, contributing their expertise, staff time, and financial support to advance REWI's mission. Friends are pivotal in supporting REWI's work and mission. They contribute time, resources, and financial support that help make solving renewable energy-wildlife challenges possible. We thank the Sustaining Partners and Friends who make REWI's work possible:
